A Year of Recovery

Along with the rest of our sector, we learned early in the COVID-19 pandemic that adaptability would be critical. 2021 not only reinforced that idea but brought it to a new scale at 4Culture.

A few key factors laid the groundwork for how we approached cultural funding and support this year: a reduction in our Lodging Tax revenue resulting from the economic impact of the pandemic, the completion of a year of invaluable work by the community members that made up our Recovery Task Force, and steadfast support from King County Executive Dow Constantine and the King County Council in the form of a $9.4 million appropriation from the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) fund.

Even as the decrease in Lodging Taxes revenue required us to scale back some of our mainstay grants, we strategized the distribution of ARPA funds using the Task Force's equity-focused Recovery Framework as a footpath. One result was the launch of a new Recovery Fund, a funding program for cultural organizations that leveraged partnerships with King County Creative and the City of Seattle Office of Arts and Culture to disburse federal dollars as widely as possible while reducing the application workload for overburdened organizations. We also worked to expand access for applicants, offering interpreter services for non-English speakers, ASL support during virtual workshops, and other ADA services. As ARPA dollars head out the door throughout 2022, we invite you to join us in celebrating the cultural organizations and workers who will put them to use creating a vibrant and resilient King County.

The scope and requirements of managing these federal funds have been precedent-setting, and 4Culture staff have come together across all departments to maximize their impact. This work happened alongside major successes in our Public Art department, including a National Register of Historic Places designation for Robert Morris' Untitled Earthwork (Johnson Pit #30) and a partnership with King County Metro to put stunning youth art on ORCA cards. We also made significant strides towards our racial equity goals, which you'll read about below. Despite its challenges, we're proud that this Year of Recovery has brought us to a place of readiness for a reboot of the King County cultural sector.

Racial Equity

In 2021, we brought new strategies to bear in our work to become an actively anti-racist organization. To increase transparency, we created a racial equity page on our website that houses information about how we bring about greater equity in our funding, commissioning, hiring, training, and practices. We also implemented new Equity Investments across all 4Culture funding programs. This practice incorporates indicators of structural inequity—location, income, budget, and more—into our grant allocation process to increase the proportion of funding to people and organizations in which the cultural sector has underinvested.

Additionally, groundwork laid in 2019 to collect demographic information from our applicants and awardees gave us a clearer picture than ever of how our funding is distributed. This data is not used by panels to make funding decisions or allocations; rather, it keeps us accountable to the communities we serve. At the close of 2021, we now have three years of demographic data to analyze. We invite you to review the charts below and to the right; you'll see our progress year to year, and where we can improve.

Individual Funding Percentages by Race, Disaggregated

Key

This chart shows how individual grant recipients identified themselves by race over the last three years, along with King County population percentages for comparison. You will notice variation in the number of recipients each year: 2019 is a typical year for 4Culture annual grant programs, 2020 reflects an increase in recipients due to the CARES federal relief program, and 2021 shows a drop due to cutbacks in the Lodging Taxes that fund our annual programs.

Recipients who identify as American Indian or Alaska Native are 1% in 2019, 2% in 2020, and 7% in 2021, King County population at 1%; Asian 6% in 2019, 8% in 2020, and 12% in 2021, King County population at 18%; Black or African American 19% in 2019, 17% in 2020, and 31% in 2021, King County population at 6%; Hispanic or Latinx 8% in 2019, 8% in 2020, and 3% in 2021, King County population at 10%; Native Hawaiian And Pacific Islander 0% in 2019, 1% in 2020, and 0% in 2021, King County population at 1%; Some other race alone 2% in 2019, 1% in 2020, and 1% in 2021; Two or more races 3% in 2019, 5% in 2020, and 9% in 2021, King County at 5%; White 44% in 2019, 42% in 2020, and 24% in 2021, King County at 60%; See my description (where recipients write in their answers) 15% in 2019, 12% in 2020, and 1% in 2021; and decline to answer 2% in 2019, 4% in 2020, and 3% in 2021.

2021 4Culture-funded Organizations – Board Demographics, Disaggregated

Key

According to The Impact of Diversity: Understanding How Nonprofit Board Diversity Affects Philanthropy, Leadership, and Board Engagement, a 2018 study conducted by the Indiana University Lilly Family School of Philanthropy, nonprofit boards are 78.6% white, 7.5% African American, 4.2% Latino, and 2.6% Asian American. 4Culture tracks the board composition of our organizational funding recipients as shown in the chart below.

In 2021, 4Culture funded organizations’ composite board makeup was: 59% White, 12% Race Unknown, 10% Asian, 8% Black or African American, 3% Hispanic or Latinx, 3% Two or More Races, 2% American Indian and Alaskan Native, and 2% Race Self-Described. Racial Equity

Looking Ahead

With the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic still being deeply felt, 4Culture recognizes that our investments in recovery will continue well into the next few years. How do we support a sector that was so deeply affected by the events of the past two years? What is needed in order to center those most impacted who have the least access to financial and social capital? These are the questions we are charged with answering in the coming years. We will remain committed to supporting the King County cultural organizations and workers who make it all possible.
