AN ORDINANCE that adopts the 2009 Annual Budget and makes appropriation for the operation of county agencies and departments and capital improvements for the fiscal year beginning January 1, 2009, and ending December 31, 2009.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF KING COUNTY:

SECTION 1. Findings: The council makes the following findings of fact:

A. King County government is responsible for providing a variety of services to all residents of the county. These include: regional services, such as criminal justice, public health, wastewater treatment and public transportation; subregional services through contracts with many suburban cities for police protection, jail services and municipal court services; and local services to unincorporated areas, such as police protection, roads, surface water management, local parks and land use regulation.

B. As the legislative branch of government, the metropolitan King County council sets policy for the county. It funds county services through the exercise of its authority to adopt an annual budget for the county. To provide these services, the council adopts a 2009 budget totaling $4.9 billion, of which $627.8 million is in the general fund.

C. King County faces an unprecedented projected revenue shortfall of $93.4 million specifically in its general fund. This shortfall is attributable to state law that limits the revenues that may be collected by counties from the property tax. The growth in the amount of property taxes levied by counties is one percent per year plus the revenues from new construction and building improvements. This rate of growth is far below the rate of inflation. This limit on the growth of property taxes, the county's primary revenue source, has created a structural gap between revenues and expenditures when inflation and other cost-increasing factors are higher than the revenue growth limit. Compounding this ongoing structural gap is turmoil in world financial markets that has depressed revenues from another major revenue source, the retail sales tax. The combined shortfall of these major revenue sources requires that King County reduce services in 2009.

D. The metropolitan King County council provides fiscal integrity and accountability by setting spending priorities based on public expectations, funding programs consistent with those priorities and measuring results. The council's budget theme for 2009 is "Protecting Priorities: Public Safety, Health and Quality of Life." By adopting Motion 12836 on August 4, 2008, the council established its intent through its budget deliberations to declare the protection of public safety, health and enhancement of quality of life to be its top priorities, and that before reducing funding in those areas it would look first to reduce or eliminate services viewed as nonessential.

E. The council by Motion 12836 also calls upon the Governor and state Legislature to permanently address the structural funding gap facing all counties in Washington state by authorizing expanded types of revenues for local jurisdictions that provide for sufficient growth to meet rising annual costs and have the flexibility of helping to fund basic public services. The council will also seek reimbursement from the Legislature for unfunded mandates by the state.

1. The executive proposed a strategy to budget certain general fund programs and services with $10.5 million for six months, one-time funding that would have expired on July 1, 2009, unless the Legislature granted King County and other jurisdictions across the state flexibility in the use of current revenues as well as authority for specific new revenue sources to fund these programs and services.

2. Recognizing the significant impacts of the proposed six-month strategy to public safety and public health, this budget chooses to fund a number of those critical services for all of 2009. This full year of funding protects these services as long as possible and provides more time for identifying new sources of revenue or, absent funding, how the county can dismantle these programs in a manner that minimizes public harm.

3. This budget adds $3.5 million in unfunded state mandates to the six-month funding strategy.

Without new sources of revenue, the county can no longer afford to pay for these costly measures that are imposed by the state but not currently paid for by the state.

F. Public Safety. The general fund shortfall makes it difficult for the county to maintain many of the council-approved policies and programs adopted since 2000 that have achieved significant success in the integration of law and justice and health and human services policies and programs. These policies and programs achieved lower rates of crime and recidivism in our communities and lowered the potential costs for the criminal justice system that accounts for more than seventy percent of the county's general fund spending. The council has worked with the executive, law and justice agencies, cities, community providers and others to create those policy-based approaches that have protected communities and ensured accountability. While the executive's proposed budget began to undo many of these important and successful programs, the council identified resources to restore in the short-term many of the proposed program reductions. Long-term solutions to maintain these policies and programs must be identified or future costs will grow and public safety will be reduced.

1. Law enforcement services for the region and the county's unincorporated areas. While the King County sheriff's office must absorb reductions in its civilian and commissioned positions that will impair its law enforcement services within the region and in the unincorporated areas for which it is the local police department, the council is restoring a significant portion of the executive's proposed reductions.

This budget restores funding that will allow the sheriff to maintain storefront deputies in the unincorporated areas of the county and maintain security at the county's courthouses. This funding will also allow the sheriff to maintain such important regional services as major accident review, ChildFind, K-9 and participation on multijurisdictional task forces. In this budget the sheriff's office will increase its contracts with Metro Transit, Sound Transit and the contract cities. As with the rest of law and justice programs, however, the absence of new revenues in future years will lead to continued reductions in county law enforcement services.

2. Maintaining court programs that support families. While this budget makes significant reductions in services for and programs within both the superior and district courts, the council is restoring funding to ensure the continuation of important and successful court programs for families, including the superior court's unified family court and drug diversion courts and the district court's mental health court. The council has supported these programs since 2000, but they were placed in jeopardy in the executive's proposed budget. This budget also provides needed resources for other programs, such as the unique domestic violence treatment program for juvenile offenders known as "Step-Up." Regardless of these policy initiatives and the work of the council for 2009, the county might be forced to eliminate these programs and many others that support a systemic approach to improving public safety in future years if the Legislature does not provide new sources of revenue.

3. Prevention over detention. This budget sustains the county's successful alternatives to secure detention, treatment and other community corrections programs that have been placed into the six-month funding strategy in the executive's proposed budget, including many parts of the council's successful adult justice operational master plan ("AJOMP") and juvenile justice operational master plan ("JJOMP"). These plans require that the county's law and justice agencies work in concert to reduce the costs of secure detention through the use of alternatives to detention, treatment programs and process improvements. Since implementation of the plans in 2001, the county has avoided spending more than $250 million that would have been needed had jail use continued at historical rates, with no increase in county crime rates. Alternatives to secure detention implemented through AJOMP and JJOM are being utilized at rates much higher than expected and have outgrown existing facilities. Nevertheless, while this budget maintains these important and effective programs, they face elimination in future years if the Legislature does not to provide the county with new sources of revenue. Loss of these programs would cause the county to likely incur significantly higher criminal justice costs in the future.

4. Office of the public defender. King County through its office of the public defender contracts with nonprofit agencies to meet its commitment to justice for all citizens by providing indigent defense services to those accused of a crime but unable to afford an attorney. In order to create a more thoughtful process for review of appropriations for public defense, the council in Proposed Ordinance 2008-0625 is changing the contracting period for the defender agencies from a January-December cycle to a July-June cycle, so that negotiations between the county and the defender agencies - and review of agency workload models as outlined by the council in Motion 12160 - can occur in a timeframe that is separate from the council's budget consideration. This budget establishes a reserve in the general fund financial plan to ensure that sufficient resources have been dedicated for public defense upon approval of currently pending contracts.

G. Public Health.

1. Since elimination in 2001 of motor vehicle excise tax revenues that were dedicated for public health, the county has experienced a significant challenge in meeting the goal of public health to protect and improve the health and well-being of all people in King County and to reduce disparities in health that are experienced by different populations. This challenge is exacerbated by the increasing need for public health services due to the re-emergence of communicable diseases such as tuberculosis, the increasing number of people who completely lack or have inadequate health insurance and other demands. In the past few years, the county met this challenge through efficiencies and reductions in public health expenditures and by significantly increasing the county's general fund contribution to public health, from about $15 million in 2001 to $32 million in 2008.

2. To meet the ongoing public health financial shortfall in 2009, this budget makes $10.5 million in program reductions, many of which are efficiencies identified through the implementation of the Public Health Operational Master Plan, a strategic plan spearheaded by the county council and adopted in 2007. In this budget, the council restores some of the full-year reductions proposed by the executive that impact services to individuals. The executive proposed that the services of Renton Family Planning clinic be consolidated in Kent as of January 1, 2009. The council restored funding for the clinic in Renton for nine months in 2009. The council also provided additional funding for tuberculosis control activities, given the historic rise in tuberculosis cases identified in King County.

3. To meet the county's shortfall in the general fund, this budget funds several programs for only six months of 2009 while the county advocates with the state for funding options. The council reprioritized the proposed budget in order to restore full-year funding for some programs and avert some of the most significant health threats to our residents. This budget provides full-year funding for: all public health centers; services provided by community-based organizations that reduce youth violence; programs for control of sexually transmitted disease; services for two hundred low-income seniors to help them manage chronic disease and avoid placement in expensive long-term care facilities; and services that ensure that children complete their immunization schedule.

This budget adopts six months of funding for several public health programs in 2009 while the county works with the state to develop revenues totaling $4.5 million to fund these programs for the remainder of 2009. If such support is not found, the following services will be reduced or entirely eliminated as of July 1, 2009: the child care health program, providing two thousand seven hundred forty-five visits to child care facilities and one hundred twelve training sessions for child care providers that help to ensure the health and safety of children; zoonotic disease control, which works with animal-related businesses in the county to reduce the transmission of disease from animals to humans and helps control infections from West Nile virus and rabies; regulation of small drinking water systems; tuberculosis control services that reduce the development of drug-resistant tuberculosis; death investigations by the medical examiner; public health laboratory testing services; investigation of communicable diseases; support provided by public health nurses to seventy-five teen mothers and their children, which is proven to reduce future criminal justice costs; support for one thousand two hundred families of children with special health and developmental needs; and the provision of dental sealants to nine hundred second-grade children. Further, all family planning services are funded for the first nine months of 2009, putting them at risk of elimination on October 1, 2009. The potential elimination of these services poses significant risks to the health of the public in King County.

4. If no funding solution is found, the outlook for public health in 2010 is even more severe. The King County board of health, by Resolution 08-07, called on the state Legislature to provide adequate, stable, dedicated, long-term financing for public health and found that the risks to the health of the public as a result of the lack of financing are significant and unacceptable. The state Legislature's Joint Select Committee on Public Health Finance likewise concluded that the local public health system in the state is underfunded by more than $300 million annually and that the lack of a stable, dedicated source of funding for public health has eroded the ability to maintain a reliable statewide system that protects the public's health. The county seeks revenue authority from the state in order to continue to adequately protect, promote and provide for the health of the public.

H. Quality of Life. While most public safety and public health programs are supported by the constrained county general fund, many other programs that contribute to our region's quality of life enjoy dedicated revenue streams, many of which were approved by voters.

1. Veterans and human services levy. Proceeds from the voter-approved veterans and human services levy permit investments in services and housing that will prevent and reduce homelessness and involvement in the criminal justice system for vulnerable veterans and others in need. Oversight by citizen boards is ensuring equitable and appropriate allocation of levy funds across the county for those most in need. This budget increases council oversight of levy funds by requiring submission of quarterly progress reports from the citizen boards.

2. Mental illness and drug dependency. This budget allocates more than $48 million from the dedicated mental illness and drug dependency sales tax to address the unmet needs of thousands of vulnerable King County residents in need of better access to mental health and chemical dependency treatment and support. These investments yield significant cost savings to the region through the reduced cycling of individuals through the criminal justice system, and increased public safety.

3. Housing. Dedicated revenues from the veterans and human services levy, the mental illness and drug dependency sales tax and the housing opportunity fund provide opportunities to create and preserve affordable housing, especially for low- and moderate-income residents and those with mental illness or drug dependencies. However, throughout 2009, the council intends to first engage in policy discussions on the best use of these funds for housing or for potential new initiatives such as an interim loan program. These discussions will focus on fiscal responsibility while balancing competing and evolving community needs.

4. Parks and open space. With revenues from the voter-approved parks levy, this budget continues expansion of the parks and open space system to improve the quality of life for county residents through the provision of facilities and space for active and passive recreation and exercise, in particular by beginning construction on the Redmond segment of the East Lake Sammamish trail, renovating the King County Aquatic Center in Federal Way, identifying and evaluating critical open space for conservation and recreation in the Cascade Foothills and rehabilitating parks throughout the county to address safety issues.

5. Natural resource and environmental quality programs. To ensure the long-term viability of natural resource-related activities such as farming and forestry, as well as continue proven salmon-recovery programs in county watersheds and Puget Sound, this budget restores staffing and funding in the water and land resources division for the agriculture, forestry, basin and rural stewardship and current use programs.

6. Animal services. This budget funds King County's policy objective of improving the humane care of animals in the county's care. In 2007, Motions 12521 and 12600 and Ordinance 15810 provided the framework for dramatically changing the quality and type of care provided at King County animal shelters. In 2008, the council requested that the auditor evaluate the county's animal licensing program and provision of services to contract cities, a study that should be completed during 2009.

In October 2008, the council received the King County Animal Services Strategic Plan and Operational Master Plan ("OMP") 2009-2011, prepared by an interbranch work group, which presented three potential organizational structures, including a community-based services model, through which King County could implement the elements required for a model program. King County shall continue to explore the community-based services model as defined by the OMP, and the council has adopted a labor policy directing good faith bargaining with affected labor organizations to explore options to implement a community-based services model program.

This budget also reflects the council's commitment to oversight and reform of animal care and control by allowing the council to review the auditor's findings before authorizing full-year funding for animal care and control, requiring the executive to develop best standards and practices for handling of controlled substances at King County's shelters and requiring regular reports on the numerous capital improvement projects at the animal shelters in Kent and Crossroads.

The council refocuses shelter staff resources from administrative positions to direct shelter care in order to improve the humane care of animals in the shelters, and moves professional veterinarian positions to the department of public health to enhance the veterinary and zoonotic control services provided to shelter animals.

7. King County fair. The council finds that the King County fair, founded in 1863 to celebrate and promote the county's agricultural heritage, is an essential part of the rural quality of life and the lives of young people for whom the annual event provides a cherished showcase. This budget restores funding for fair operations for 2009. In addition, the council by Proposed Motion 2008-0628 is calling for a task force to explore ways to boost revenues and attendance in order to make the fair more self-sustaining in the future and less dependent upon support from the general fund.

8. Metro Transit. Turmoil in the world and local economy led to a dramatic plunge in the sales tax revenues that support the transit financial plan, creating a shortfall of ninety million dollars in the 2008/2009 biennium and ninety million dollars annually thereafter. At the same time, uncertainty over gasoline prices, traffic congestion and environmental concerns combined to increase rider demand for public transportation to record levels.

This crisis in transit funding requires the council, in Proposed Ordinance 2008-0584, to approve a midbiennium supplemental budget for public transit, in conjunction with adoption of this budget. This budget declares the council's priority of maintaining bus service on the streets to meet increased rider demand, and closes the funding gap by:

a. reducing Metro's annual operating expenses by five percent of its roughly $600 million annual budget, or $28.2 million. Much of this saving can be realized by locking in diesel fuel supplies at prices that are much lower now than in the summer of 2008 when the price of oil was spiraling out of sight;

b. scaling back or deferring entirely $12.8 million in Metro capital projects, including: deferring small improvements at Metro bus bases to exterior signage, storage areas and generators; delaying the replacement or upgrade of lighting at park-and-ride lots where the existing equipment is still working; and canceling noncritical enhancements to the overhead trolley wire network;

c. reducing Metro's annual capital fund by $40 million, as proposed by the executive; and

d. adopting Ordinance 16299 that raises transit fares by twenty-five cents in many fare categories on February 1, 2009, with a similar twenty-five-cent increase to take effect on January 1, 2010. This measure will generate $9.5 million in 2009 and a cumulative $22 million a year from 2010 onwards and restore the target rate of bus fares defraying about twenty-five percent of transit operating expenses.

Existing revenues might not be sufficient to meet future demand for public transportation. King County must work with the state of Washington and the federal government to develop additional sources of revenue and to expand on its recent success in developing partnerships with cities and other entities.

9. Roads and mobility. The council finds that a crisis developed over the past decade in the funding of county roads, and that a new funding source for roads is essential. Just over a year ago, voters turned down the roads and transit ballot measure that included $110 million in essential funding for the South Park bridge project in the roads CIP. In the midbiennium supplemental budget for public transit, the council requires the director of the department of transportation to develop a strategy to identify grant funding and other revenue sources for county transportation priorities, including the South Park bridge and other county road needs, as well as public transportation.

Progress in 2009 on the roads operational master plan will provide further direction on potential efficiencies and savings and is essential to prepare the agency for a future when the division's direct responsibilities consist primarily of county road facilities in the rural unincorporated area.

10. Wastewater treatment division. This budget continues the council's commitment to public health and the protection of Puget Sound by investing more than $600 million in dozens of vital sewer improvement projects. This budget maintains stable rates and charges by maximizing cost effectiveness in all wastewater programs and projects, including the canceling or deferral of nonessential projects, prioritization of all water quality activities and monitoring of programs and implementation of full cost-recovery for contract services.

11. Technology oversight. Through the council's technology governance process this budget identifies savings in the general fund of $4.6 million by eliminating information technology ("IT") projects deemed nonessential. Those IT projects that are funded will provide significant improvement in customer service or are essential to maintaining the provision of county services.

12. Elections. This budget provides for the transition to all-mail balloting in 2009 with the ongoing provision of one of the most basic of all county services: the conduct of accurate, fair and transparent elections. Since the general election of 2004, the county has conducted 22 successful elections.

I. Financial Policies. This budget continues to implement long-standing financial policies that limit debt levels and maintain healthy general fund reserves. The county's prudent financial management and low level of debt earned the highest possible bond rating from all three major rating agencies: Standard & Poor's; Moody's Investors Service and Fitch Ratings. As a result, King County saves taxpayers' money on the financing of capital projects through lower interest rates.

The sound financial policies adopted by the council over the years include: Motion 5888 in 1983, which required minimum levels of fund balance in the county's current expense fund; Motion 7020 in 1987, which dedicated a portion of additional sales tax revenues to the creation of a sales tax reserve to be used for financial emergencies; Motions 8352 and 8446 in 1991, which reaffirmed the council's intent that the sales tax reserve be used for financial emergencies; and Motion 12660 in 2007, which set policies related to long-term debt.

Furthermore, the council created a financial policy advisory task force in Motion 12394 in 2006 to independently review financial and debt policies. In response to recommendations from that task force, the council in 2007 further demonstrated its commitment to fiscal responsibility through the adoption of Ordinance 15961, which created a separate rainy day fund to be available for emergencies, into which the $15 million sales tax reserve was transferred in 2008.

The council created an investment pool advisory panel in Motion 12595 in 2007 to conduct a comprehensive review of the King County investment pool. As a result of that group's recommendations, this budget includes funding to improve the policies and procedures of the investment pool to further safeguard the public's money.

Through adoption of this budget, which funds the most critical priorities first, the council begins the process of addressing the structural gap between revenues and expenditures with reductions to operating expenses, minimal reliance on reserves to weather what could be a lengthy financial crisis and specific advocacy strategies with Washington state leadership.

This budget assumes that even under the best of conditions, additional operational reductions will be necessary in future years, and that without additional revenues from the state or other sources, those reductions will be even more severe.

J. Rainy day fund. Recognizing that the King County budget is vulnerable to sudden contractions of the economy that can cause unexpected drops in revenues, the council intends to create a working group of experts to develop the use of the rainy day fund as a counter-cyclical reserve into which contributions can be made when revenues are robust and from which moneys could be drawn to protect services during periods of economic decline.

K. Economic and Financial Analysis. Pursuant to a voter-approved charter amendment in 2008, a new independent office of economic and financial analysis will be formed within county government, under the direction of an economic forecast council, to prepare official forecasts of county revenues that may inform future budgets.

L. Financial Plan. Attachments H and I to this ordinance contain the official financial plans for the current expense fund and for the emergency medical services levy.

M. Employee Furloughs. With reduced revenues, King County is working hard to find innovative ways to gain efficiencies in all county functions in order to minimize service reductions to the public. The council expresses its gratitude and appreciation to county employees who voluntarily agreed to up to ten unpaid furlough days in order to close the budget shortfall while minimizing additional layoffs.

The executive proposed budget calculated for agencies an appropriation amount known as a "labor contra" that originally assumed $13.1 million of savings in wages and benefits in addition to other reductions in expenditures the agencies had previously identified.

On October 20, 2008, the council, by Motion 12870, affirmed the county's labor policy in support of the executive's good-faith bargaining with represented employees to find savings to help balance the 2009 budget. The executive has since negotiated tentative agreements with a number of the county's collective bargaining units on how to meet the "labor contra," and if these agreements are ratified by bargaining unit members and approved by the council, they will allow the county to establish nonworking furlough days when most county offices would be closed and nonessential workers would not work or be paid. A number of steps will be necessary to implement this furlough, including the concurrence of other independent branches of government and legislative and administrative actions to fully authorize furloughs for both represented and nonrepresented employees.

This budget appropriates available funds to agencies and assumes successful implementation of the furlough approach, or other measures that could include reductions in services, layoffs and other cost-saving measures. The council is committed to expeditious consideration of legislation that might be needed to implement the furlough plan, the first day of which would occur on January 2, 2009. However strict charter deadlines preclude completion of the necessary due diligence before council adoption of the 2009 county budget.

N. It is the intent of the metropolitan King County council that its policies be implemented through the 2009 King County budget ordinance.

SECTION 2. Effect of proviso or expenditure restriction veto. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent of the council that a veto of any proviso or expenditure restriction that conditions the expenditure of a stated dollar amount or the use of FTE authority upon the performance of a specific action by an agency shall thereby reduce the appropriation authority to that agency by the stated dollar or FTE amount.

Of this appropriation, $100,000 shall not be expended or encumbered until the executive, in conjunction with the facilities management division, reduces the 2009 non-GF agency contributions to the major maintenance reserve fund by $687,160. Contribution reductions shall be allocated proportionally among the various major maintenance reserve fund contributing agencies in a manner consistent with the agency contributions in the executive proposed 2009 budget.

The reduction amount is based upon the historical ratio of contributions between GF and non-GF agencies which is approximately 90 percent and 10 percent respectively.

P1 PROVIDED THAT:

Of this appropriation, $100,000 shall not be expended or encumbered until the council receives and approves by motion the components and justification for each component that will be used to develop the indigent defense contracts between King County and the nonprofit defense corporations. These components shall be consistent with the model adopted by the council in Motion 12160. The report shall be developed by the department of community and human services in conjunction with the office of management and budget and shall include current data and input from the contract defense agencies and the King County Bar Association. The report shall include a quantifiable estimate of the energy impact of removing the aluminum panels, a detailed description of the methodology used to arrive at the estimates, and the estimated fiscal impact of the removal and resulting energy impacts.

The report must be filed in the form of 11 copies with the clerk of the council, who shall retain the original and will forward copies to each councilmember and to the lead staff for the capital budget committee, or its successor.
