WHEREAS, for more than nine months, the department of executive services ("DES") has gone to great lengths to fill the records, elections and licensing services division director position, and

WHEREAS, in December 2006, DES hired Waldron and Company, an executive search firm, to launch an aggressive national search to fill the records, elections and licensing services division ("REALS") director position, and

WHEREAS, as the liaison to four external reviews of the organization, Sherril has overseen the implementation of recommendations which have helped rebuild public trust and confidence in King County elections both internally and with key stakeholders including the citizens' elections oversight committee, the

Secretary of State and the King County Republican and Democratic political parties, and

WHEREAS, her contributions have provided positive cultural, organizational and procedural changes within the division since 2005, and

WHEREAS, having served two terms as Kitsap County Auditor, 1979 to 1986, Sherril has a unique and thorough understanding of elections laws, and

WHEREAS, in addition to her responsibilities as the county's chief elections officer, she oversaw licensing, archives and recording responsibilities and services, and

WHEREAS, with more than twenty-eight years of public-sector service, Sherril possesses a vast knowledge of state and local government agencies, and

WHEREAS, before joining King County elections in 2005, Sherril served as deputy mayor for the city of Bremerton where she is credited for establishing a foundation and team in the expansive waterfront revitalization project, and

WHEREAS, during her public service career, Sherril also served as executive director of the Kitsap Regional Coordinating Council, assistant director of the Washington State Lottery and was elected as a Bremerton City Council representative, and

WHEREAS, as King County transitions to all mail voting and other critical projects in each section of the division, it is critical we have a leader in place who is intimately familiar with our organization, Washington state election law and with the experience and qualifications to run a large organization during transition;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT MOVED by the Council of King County:

The county executive's appointment of Sherril Huff as director, records, elections
