WHEREAS, as of April 23, 2020, King County had reported 5,569 confirmed cases of COVID-19, and at least 384 individuals in King County had died as a result of the virus, and

WHEREAS, while COVID-19 is the worst pandemic to affect King County in several generations, the possibility of pandemics of similar or greater impact in the future is omnipresent, and changing climatic conditions are expected to multiply the threat of zoonotic and other pandemics, and

WHEREAS, the mission of the office of emergency management is "to provide for the effective direction, control and coordination of county government emergency services functional units, and to provide liaison with other governments and the private, nongovernmental sector, in compliance with a state-approved comprehensive emergency management plan and to serve as the coordinating entity for cities, county governmental departments and other appropriate agencies, during incidents and events of regional significance," and the office is tasked with developing a comprehensive plan and program for emergency management, and

WHEREAS, public health - Seattle & King County is responsible for planning and developing local and regional capacity for responding to public health emergencies and providing for the direction and mobilization of health resources, information and personnel during emergencies and disasters in the county, and

WHEREAS, in 2005, Ordinance 15348 required the executive to develop a pandemic influenza response plan, and

WHEREAS, Ordinance 15596 adopted the County's Pandemic Influenza Response Plan in 2006, and Ordinance 15986 adopted an updated version of the plan the following year, and

WHEREAS, public health - Seattle & King County has, in the past, developed other planning documents relating to influenza pandemics, such as the Influenza Pandemic Planning Guide for Homeless and Housing Service Providers, and

WHEREAS, the King County office of emergency management develops and maintains a number of planning documents, such as the Regional Hazard Mitigation Plan, the Comprehensive Emergency Management Plan, the Regional Coordination Framework, King County continuity of operations plans and the King County Continuity of Government Plan, and

WHEREAS, the COVID-19 pandemic is the first real-world test of these plans in a large-scale, global pandemic outbreak affecting King County, and the lessons learned in the outbreak must be used to prepare for future pandemics, whether they be viral, bacterial or parasitic in origin, and

WHEREAS, the lessons learned during the COVID-19 pandemic outbreak have application outside pandemic planning and should be used to prepare for other types of emergencies under an all-hazards approach to emergency management;
